Don't Play Hitler's Game

Our 'Young' Country

The President, in the inspiring speech in which he set new goals for the national war effort, also called attention to still another answer to the question "What can I do?" He pointed to a field in which every man, woman, and child can serve his country. It is the field of morale. Be vigilant, he urged, against racial discrimination in any of its ugly forms. Be wary of any who try to breed mistrust and suspicion between one individual and another, one group and another, one race and another, one government and another.

Officials Deny Hints of Revolt Inside Germany

Soviet Forces Recapture Mosalsk, Tighten Vice on 100,000 Nazis

By the Associated Press
Adolf Hitler's own press chief prepared the German nation for a jolt Saturday, solemnly acknowledging that Nazi military operations "have reached an extremely serious, and indeed critical, phase."

Soviet front line dispatches declared that advancing Red army troops had recaptured Mosalsk, 47 miles west of Kaluga and further tightened the vice on 100,000 Germans still holding out at Mozhaisk.

Russian spearheads were reported within 25 miles of the Vyanznu-Bryansk line.

Revolution Rumored
SOMEWHERE ON THE GERMAN FRONTIER—(P)—Advises reaching this border point states that persistent reports of revolution in Germany, following increasing reverses on the eastern front, have impelled the Nazi foreign office to make a middle of the night denial.

Foreign correspondents one night this week were called from bed to be told individually by telephone of the reports and to hear the official denial. Some correspondents expressed surprise that the stories created so much concern in Wilhelmstrasse that an immediate denial was considered necessary.

Increasing information from reliable sources indicated that the German army's troubles began when Adolf Hitler overruled Field Marshal Walthar von Brauchitsch's plan—which reputedly was to fall back to the Berezina river before winter set in.

The Berezina is in White Russia, almost 400 miles from Moscow. It was said that Hitler hoped to press on, whereupon the field marshal resigned.

He reportedly took over personal command when other officers declined to take the responsibility.

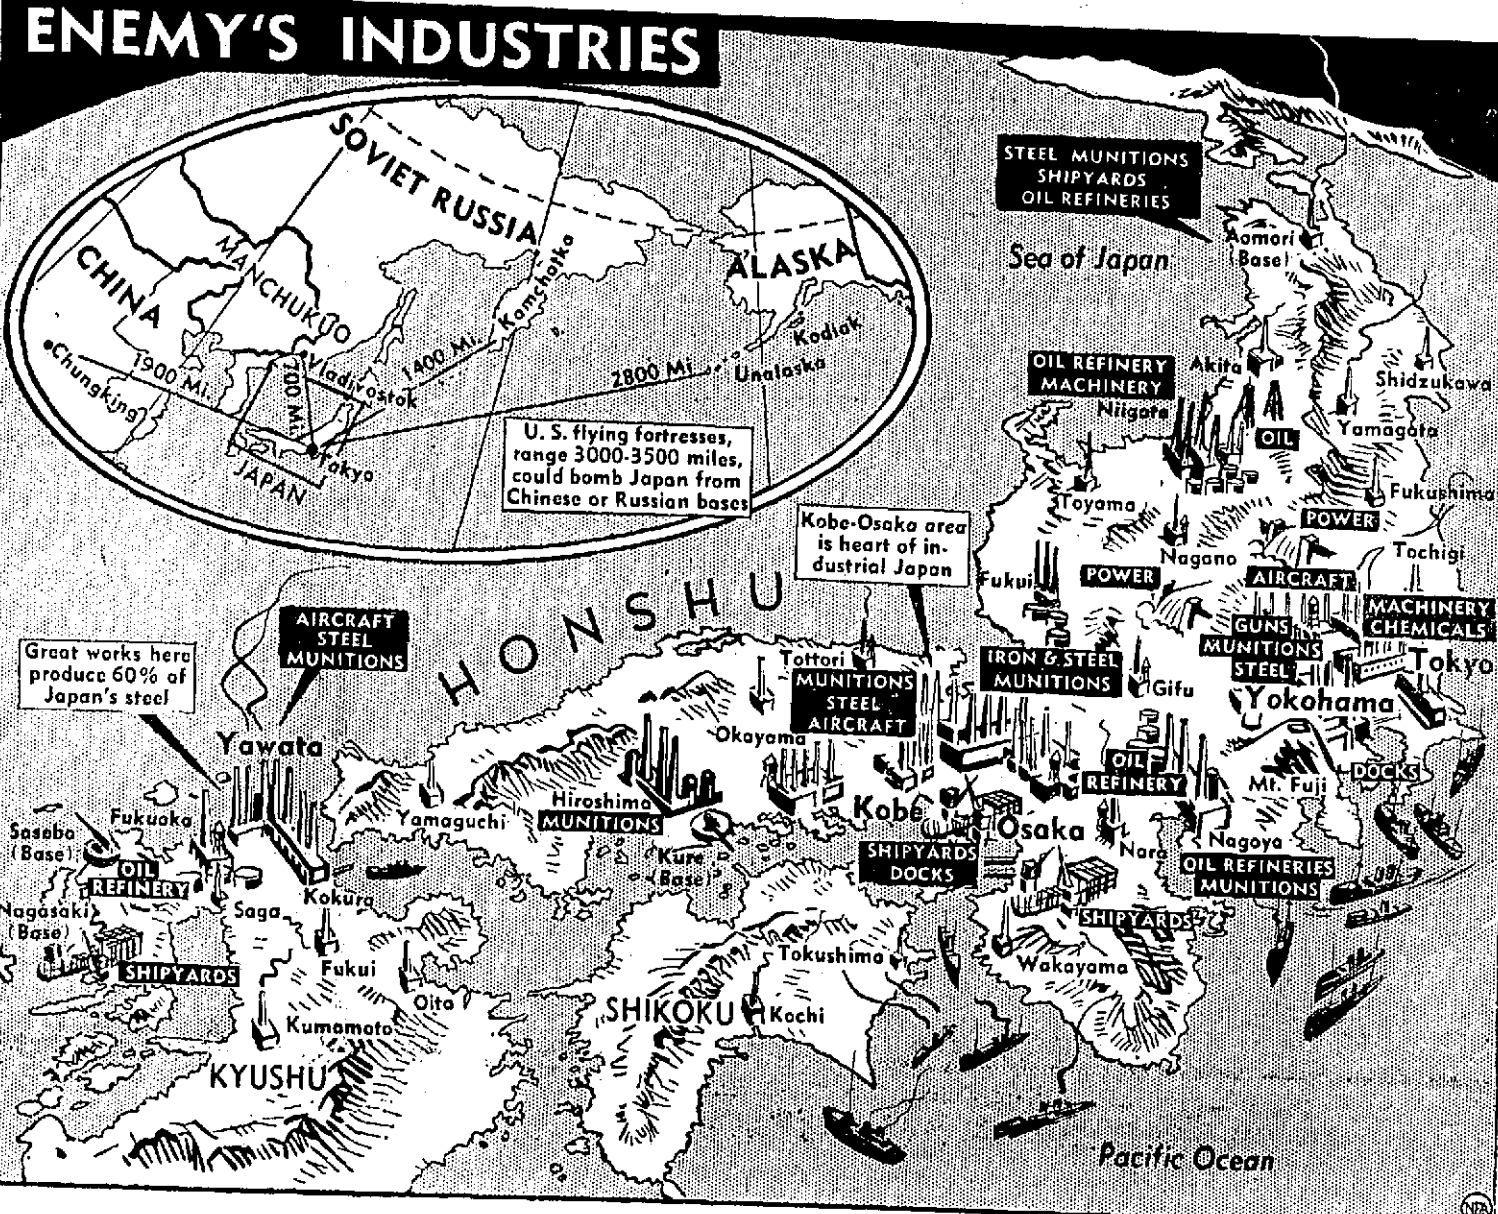

By that time it was too late to turn back.

How They Line Up in Steel Output

NEW YORK—(P)—This is a war of steel, and the side that can produce the most may win because of that fact.

A steel authority, giving each country involved credit for the best year it ever had, scored the contending sides this way:

Germany, Italy, Japan, and all conquered Europe—60,000,000 tons a year. U. S., British Empire and Russia—130,000,000 tons.

Should Germany manage to capture the U. S. and take over the Russian facilities located west of the Urals, the score would read:

U. S., British Empire and Russia—130,000,000 tons.

Permit Granted for Ark-La Line

Decision Rendered in Aluminum Plant Dispute

LITTLE ROCK—(P)—The Arkansas Utilities Commission Saturday declared in a formal order it would grant the Ark-La Electric Corp. Inc., authority to build a 197 mile transmission line from Markham's Ferry, Okla., to the Lake Catherine Aluminum Plant provided the War Department, SPAB and the OPM or any one of them having power to decide such a question, indicates the line was considered to be for the best interests of national defense.

Asserting the "If we felt free to exercise our own judgment in this matter the application for this line would be denied."

The committee declared that in its judgment the construction of the line and the use of the Grand River, Okla. dam for power involves a capacity of copper and money which should not be permitted at this time.

Planes, However Score Hits on 3 Enemy Bases

Japs Preparing for All-Out Thrust Against U. S. Defenders

SINGAPORE—(P)—Battle weary British soldiers, engaged in extremely bloody fighting in western Malaya, have withdrawn further to the south the British Far Eastern command acknowledged Saturday, while British planes blasted three Japanese bases in apparently an attempt to relieve the pressure.

British aviators fiercely attacked Japanese objectives at Sungai Patani and Singora on the eastern coast of the narrow strip of Thailand territory on the northern part of the Malay peninsula and at the communications center of Ipoh, some 100 miles north of the western Malay battlezone.

Cause Large Explosions
The raiders were said to have caused explosions and huge fires.

The extent of the withdrawal from the scene of furious fighting in the Slim river sector, 50 miles north of Kuala Lumpur, Japan's immediate objective, was not given.

More Reinforcements
WASHINGTON—(P)—The War Department reported Saturday intensive patrolling and artillery duels between Philippine defenders and the Japanese and said heavy enemy reinforcements were being brought up.

The reinforcements apparently ordered in preparation for renewed Japanese offensive in Luzon.

Jap Vessels Appear
Also the War Department said considerable number of enemy vessels had appeared off the coast of southernmost Philippine island of Mindanao, indicating the probability of additional Japanese landings there.

Territory of Papua Escapes War to Date

ONE of the few outposts of the British empire untouched so far by the greedy hand of war is the Territory of Papua, or British New Guinea.

Most common among the ships in Papua's three ports is the native vessel shown on the stamp above, issued by the territorial authorities about 1908.

Papua is part of the island of New Guinea, just off the northern coast of Australia. A protectorate was established over the territory in 1884 after the Government of Queensland annexed the land in 1883.

In 1906 it was named the Territory of Papua under the jurisdiction of the governor-general of Australia, with a lieutenant-governor of its own.

Approximately 200,000 natives and 1500 Europeans inhabit the land, which is cultivated chiefly for coconuts, rubber and sisal. Recently copper mines have been worked there with exports reaching nearly $1,000,000 annually.

Help Defense, Spray Trees

Says Farmers Should Order Bug Blitz Materials

Oliver L. Adams, county agent, said today that the best defense fruit and truck crop growers this year will be a well-timed offense, but warned that growers who delay ordering repair parts for their dusting and spraying equipment may not be prepared for effective action when the 1942 bug blitz begins.

Orders for parts must be placed as soon as possible to ensure adequate production and timely delivery, according to word received by the county agent from Earle K. Rambo of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

The Agriculture engineer said that manufacturers of farm machinery repair parts have a high priority rating, but he pointed out that only enough parts are being produced to meet growers' needs, as indicated by their orders. Rambo urged fruit and truck growers to check over every piece of machinery that will be needed to prepare soil, plant, cultivate, spray, dust, and harvest the 1942 fruit and truck crops. It is particularly important, he said, to test pumps for pressure leaks and to clean last season's insecticides out of pipes and nozzles.

But They Rename it the 'Fish Bowl'

OKLAHOMA CITY—(AP)—The late dust bowl, now a land of green pastures, soon may be raising fish for defense.

Nelson H. Newman, state game warden, said lakes constructed in Oklahoma as a part of a water conservation program might be properly cultured and stocked to raise crops of good eating fish.

He estimated it is possible to rear several hundred pounds of fish annually on farms with several ponds of good size.

The suggestion is being studied by officials of other states where soil and water conservation programs of dust bowl days resulted in the construction of hundreds of stock and irrigation ponds.

Sales of retail stores during the first ten months ending October increased 19 per cent above last year, the Department of Commerce says.

Lenora Rounton Is Feted at Important Late Winter Social Event

Mrs. Roy Anderson, Mrs. Thompson Evans, Jr., and Mrs. Terrell Cornelius were hostesses at a delightful buffet supper at the Anderson home Friday evening in honor of Miss Rounton, fiancée of Lt. James C. Cross of Washington D. C.

Miss Rounton and Mrs. Evans received guests informally in the living room which reflected the spring motif in the decorations with heather at vantage points alternating with bouquets of yellow gladioli. On the mantel twin vases contained spring gladioli, cornflowers, yellow pom-pom mums, gerbera, and pussy willow.

Supper was served, buffet style, in softly-lit table with an exquisite arrangement of Briardell roses, white stock, and candytuft. Four glowing tapers in silver holders flanked the central adornment. Antique appointments added to the beauty of the setting. Mrs. Ralph Rounton and Miss Beryl Henry presided at the table and were assisted by the hostesses in the serving courtesies.

Red, white, and blue candles burned in bronzed candelabra on the buffet. The hors d'oeuvre served the magnificent white cake centered with charlotte roses and topped with brilliantly colored cherries.

Following the supper, Miss Rounton was cleverly presented a number of attractive and useful articles for her kitchen.

Among those present for the delightful affair were Miss Rounton, Mrs. Ralph Rounton, Mrs. Nora Carvign, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. McDavitt, Mrs. G. R. Bredelove, Mr. and Mrs. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Jewell, Miss Beryl Henry, Mrs. E. O. Wingfield, Miss Daisy Dorothy Heard, James Luther Lollamon, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. George Robison, Lt. and Mrs. Samuel Davalos, Mr. and Mrs. Terrell Cornelius, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Evans, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anderson.

Mrs. Carlton, president of the club, presided at an important business session. The club voted to contribute their Bundles for Britain to the local welfare unit and $5 was contributed to the Red Cross.

A music dictionary and reference book was presented to the club by Mrs. R. M. LeGrone, Sr. In connection with the club's books, a committee was appointed to secure a music club shelf at the library in the city hall.

A committee composed of Mrs. Henry Haynes, Mrs. George Ware, and Mrs. C. C. McNeil, was appointed to select uniforms suitable for the choral club.

An invitation was extended to the club members to have a luncheon at the home of Mrs. George Ware during the month so that the club can listen to the Saturday operas in a group.

Capital Still Has Teapots

Latest Is Removal of 12 Government Agencies

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Being head over heels in a world war doesn't keep Washington from having its teapot tempests.

The latest is over the President's order moving 12 government agencies, with approximately 10,000 employees, to other cities.

This "decentralization" of government has been talked for a long and a few small agencies have been transferred. These, however, were mostly regional offices which have been transferred to other cities nearby. Although it was known that the budget bureau, under Director Harold D. Smith, one of the President's close advisors, had been studying the possibilities of booting some agencies out of Washington to make way for the defense hordes pouring in, "insiders" had predicted just recently that nothing ever would be done about it.

Then pop out of the box, the President issues his order, moving Rural Electrification and Farm Security to St. Louis, the Patent Office to New York; the Securities and Exchange Commission, Alien Registration and several others to Philadelphia, the Wage and House division and one other agency to Pittsburgh; and several including the Railroad Retirement board and the Office of Indian Affairs, to Chicago.

After that came the storm. Members of congress, as usual, were in the thick of it. Some of them called it "silly" and "ridiculous." Others hailed it as a wise move and the only solution toward stemming the tide of government workers that threatens to make the capital a modern Donnybrook Fair.

On the latter side is the Civil Service Commission's estimate that 40,000 additional government workers will be employed here by July; the frantic search for office space to take care of the present government staffs and the already critical lack of suitable housing accommodations.

The chief anti-decentralization arguments are the expense of the move (the government has to pay moving expenses of the workers, as well as for office equipment and files, and make allowances for "resettlement" costs) and the increased expense of doing business with agencies some distance from their departmental bosses; the uprooting of personnel that has established homes here and the great turnover in personnel resulting from refusal of workers to string along with their jobs.

Center of the whirlwind of argument now is the Patent Office, with officials of that agency and approximately 700 patent attorneys here who live off our patent system and the litigation that grows out of it, leading the fight.

Their facts and figures are impressive. Although the Patent Office has only about 1,500 employees, a survey of the entire field indicates that nearly 20,000 persons would be taken out of Washington by transfer of the office—many of them the aforementioned patent attorneys, their families and employees.

In addition, the Patent Office basement contains 1,600 cases of records, with an overall weight of nearly 8,000 tons. This doesn't include the patent office's scientific library and the examiner's records.

The SEC also is against transferring to Philadelphia and Wage and Hours is getting up a petition to move to Richmond, Va., instead of Pittsburgh. One compromise measure proposed is that the patent office and SEC moves be made temporary for the duration and that files of the former not be transferred.

One of the government personnel experts says his survey indicates 5,000 of the affected workers are eager to move and that twice that many office workers will transfer from other agencies immediately if they can work in the cities named instead of here.

Several high government officials say all the argument is just a lot of sound of fury which will avail nothing—"because this is just the beginning." Budget Director Smith, in making his announcement, admitted that his bureau's survey of decentralization possibilities had not been completed.

Bing Crosby Has More Rorse Trouble

HOLLYWOOD—Bing Crosby, who is known as quite a horseman in these parts, was having horse trouble on the set of "Holiday Inn." He and everybody else. They had been having it all day.

It looked like a simple shot. Here it was spring in Connecticut—Easter Sunday, in fact—and people were coming out of a country church. Some of the cuties looked like chorus girls even if they were carrying Bibles, and some of the gents looked like actors on parole from Broadway. In general, though, they looked acceptably like people leaving a country church in the spring.

At this point the vigilant camera picked out Mr. Crosby and Marjorie Reynolds, the latter, a slim dish in yellow, and followed them to and into a buggy. The horse wasn't tied to a hitching post or anything and presumably had been content to stand there all through the service sniffing the apple blossoms and listening to the hymns.

From some where, perhaps hidden in the choir loft, a 40-piece orchestra struck up Irving Berlin's "Easter Parade." The idea was for the camy girl as they drove slowly past the church and a little way down a road while he sang a chorus of the song.

Buggy Trouble
As soon as Crosby picked up the reins, the horse reared sharply and started off under some trees. The cramped wheels tipped the buggy, and Miss Reynolds, who until a few weeks ago was being tossed off stagecoaches in western thrillers, looked scared. Handlers leaped to seize the bridle, the scene was stopped, and everybody went back into the church.

This sort of thing had been going on for six hours. And this was the third nag which had been brought in to pull the buggy on a drive of some 30 yards. The horses didn't always shy at the bright lights and noise; mostly they just walked too fast, reaching the end of the lane and the limits of the camera's movement while Crosby still had several bars to sing.

"If I'd known you couldn't find any real plugs," complained the star, "I'd have brought one of my race horses."

Busy Bing
"Holiday Inn" is based on a story idea by Irving Berlin, who wanted an excuse to write a song about each of our national holidays. So he did 11 new ones, testing in "Easter Parade" and "Lazy" from his older numbers.

"Lazy" observes no special holiday—just Crosby's personal emancipation from work. Bing sings all 13 songs and actually works harder than anybody, even Fred Astaire, who does eight dances—six with Miss Reynolds and two with Virginia Dale.

Miss Dale, by the way, was the studio's original choice for the feminine lead. For three solid months she followed an exhausting routine of dancing lessons, vocal lessons and beatings by a massuse. She learned all the songs and dances, plus her dramatic role, only to be told shortly before filming started that she was better suited for the secondary part. It was tough to take, but the way she took it will be remembered.

Baer Proves Easy for Louis

Champ Scores Knockout in First Two Minutes

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York—(AP)—Joe Louis tore the California giant, Buddy Baer, apart Friday night and chipped him down in the fourth fastest time a heavyweight champion ever turned back a challenger.

Working for the fun of it, Joe got all the fun out of this brief brawl as he turned loose an explosion of dynamite that never gave Buddy a chance to draw a breath, that floored the 250 pound Goliath twice for nine counts, and that finally left him beaten, bewildered and broken in two minutes, 56 seconds of the first round of what was to have been a 15-round tussle.

This was a murderous Louis, who ripped and tore and, above all, fired his torpedoes continuously, so that Buddy never really knew what happened.

This was not the Louis of the Baer fight in Washington last May, who was knocked out of the ring by one of Buddy's big paws and who waited six full rounds before catching up with him.

Louis was strictly a 16-inch gun of target practice. No one could have counted all the blows he landed as a near sell-out crowd that turned out for this fight for the benefit of the navy relief fund roared and gasped at his power.

But he must have thrown a hundred or more wallopers. Two smashing rights dropped Buddy the first time he hit the deck. A long, lightning left put the crusher on.

Cookie Replaces the Doughnut

Soldiers Like Them Better Says Salvation Army

By MARGUERITE YOUNG

NEA Service Staff Writer
NEW YORK — It's doughnuts to doughboys no longer—it's the good old fashioned American cookie now. And nobody's more pleased about that than the women who made an international name with the doughnuts in 1917.

Indeed, Brigadier Helen Purviance of the Salvation Army is pushing the cookies herself, this time. As assistant in command of the Salvation Army's field and candidates' department for 11 eastern states headquartered here, she feeds volunteers into the USO. One thing she gets from them before they go is assurance that they fully appreciate the cookie.

Doughnuts Started As "Culinary Juiciness"

"Over there 24 years ago," explains the firm-featured blonde Brigadier, "the doughnut was an emergency article. We put it together with whatever ingredients and kitchen equipment were at hand—it was a quickie, as they say about a movie."

"But here, with our fine kitchens and good ingredients, of course we have cookies."

"A cookie takes a boy's thoughts back to home and family like nothing else. And that's one thing we're striving for. So I say, GIVE THEM COOKIES. And see that they're home made by mothers, sisters and sweethearts whenever possible."

As Ensign Helen Purviance, she whipped up the first batch of doughnuts for A. E. F. members at Montic-sur-Saulx, France, in August 1917. She had gone with the first contingent of Army workers, and was assigned to the first ammunition train.

Hawaii Head

of the First Division. She had entered Salvation Army training eight years earlier in her home town, Huntington, Ind. In November, 1918, she came back to talk for the War Drive and help organize the reception of homecoming troops at Hoboken, New Jersey.

In touch with Salvationists who operate 42 USO clubs in 26 states as part of the national inter-faith wartime welfare plan, Brigadier Purviance has first-hand information about what service recruits ask for. It's cookies, she says, North, South, East, West.

So she instituted the cookie jar in service men's centers. Volunteer women's committees in the camp areas keep them filled. Members operate on a schedule, supplying so many dozens cookies on specified days.

Cookies For Soldiers

Vary Geographically

The cookies vary from place to place. In New England it's the Boston cookie or the Cape Cod oatmeal cookie. Maryland and Virginia hold out for peanut cookies. Further south and in the west there are molasses cookies.

"Maybe," the Brigadier surmises, still looking ahead "this war will give us a new symbol of American food—a new cookie of such satisfying taste and quality that word of it will pass around among the boys and it will attain lasting culinary fame. One thing I know. It will be more tempting than the doughnut."
